

27th Nordic Medical History Congress, 22-25 May 2019

The main purpose is to bring scholars, curators, clinicians, and students within the (Nordic) history of medicine together to present and discuss new developments and experiences. A broad spectrum of topics will be presented both as keynote talks and parallel sessions:

DNA

Professor Eske Willerslev from the University of Copenhagen will talk about DNA Use in the Mapping of Early Human Migrations, and professor em. Jørgen Lange Thomsen from the University of Southern Denmark will talk about DNA Use in Forensic Medicine.

ART AND MEDICINE

PhD Eva Åhrén from the Karolinska Institute in Stockholm will talk about Picturing Health and Sickness, and MD PhD MSc LicSc Jan Bondeson, writer of best sellers about medical history, will talk about Medical Curiosities in Old Picture Postcards.

Professor em. Øivind Larsen from University of Oslo will share selected stories from The Medical History Congresses from 1967 to 2019.

Professor Ken Arnold from the Medical Museion in Copenhagen will moderate a panel debate about The History of Medicine: Quo Vadis?

Many other topics will be presented in the parallel sessions by different speakers - yourself included. Naturally, the program will also include events, excursions and a social dinner.

An excursion will go to Ny Carlsberg Glyptotek on Thursday 23 May 19:30-20:30, where PhD Rune Frederiksen, the Head of Collections, will present selected masterpieces:

Disease and Medicine in the Ancient Greek World (limited seats available).
